

Edee Cutt packed her new college degree and headed to Redbud to join her grandmother's business. Instead, she attends her funeral and buries her only link to family history and possibly her future. But rent is paid on the business office and Edee can save the house she inherited from her grandmother if she can salvage the business. Her chances are slim, but get worse when JT Knight arrives in town and evicts Edee from the office. Her instant attraction to the man trying to destroy her dreams is bad enough, but now she has to depend on his job offer to keep the roof over her head and disaster looms. Jacob Troy Knight wants to return to Redbud to show the residents he made a success of his life. Even dread of facing his past is better than the cold reception he gets when he buys an office building and tries to evict the only tenant so he can remodel the premises. Failure greets him at every turn and his only ally turns out to be the tenant haunting his dreams and his future. Can JT let go the past and face the future? Will Edee achieve her dreams of having a real home when she can rescue the business, or will her attraction to JT show her that finding the right man to love is her real dream? Find the answers in A BRIDE FOR MR. RIGHT.
