

George Hoyningen-Huene began at Vogue as an illustrator and then became a supremely successful fashion photographer. Moving to Harpers Bazaar, he extended his range to portraiture and travel, capturing artists, composers and Hollywood stars including Cary Grant, Katharine Hepburn, Igor Stravinsky and Jean Cocteau. In this book, colour and duotone images display the full range of Hoyningen-Huene's talent, alongside an extended account of his career, drawing largely on unpublished biographical material.
